HARDING'S WORLD TRIBUNAL

With the declaration of Senator Harding in his speech of last Saturday that he considers the present league of nations a complete and irredeemable failure and his announcement of his substitute for it in the form of a world association, the issue between the two parties is distinctly drawn. Senator Harding proposes to construct an association on the framework of the Hague tribunal, clothed with such attributes of the covenant as are found safe and practicable. The Republican nominee also pledges himself, if elected, to make immediate effort with the advice of the ablest men of both parties to form such an association either by putting teeth into the Hague covenant by revising the covenant to protect national aspirations. Thus Senator Harding fulfills his promise to clarify his stand on the question of the league of nations and at the same time does not forget the moral obligation which this country has towards all the nations of the world.

"The Republican nominee," says Senator Harding, "has flatly said he is in favor of going in on the basis announced by the president. I am not. That is the whole difference between us, but it is a most vital one because it involves the disparity between a world court of justice supplemented by a world association for conference on the one hand and the council of the league on the other." The Senator also is on record as favoring the passage of joint resolution without the negotiating of a separate treaty with Germany. On these points the issue will be fought out and well it may be for Senator Harding is only standing on the platform adopted at Chicago by the Republicans. That document holds out no hope for the present league but at the same time the stand of the Republicans does not drive out those who favor some sort of a world association. Although details of what Senator Harding proposes have not been given out, enough has been made known of its principles to insure that it will be a "judicial tribunal to be governed by fixed and definite principles of law administered without passion or prejudice." The idea advanced by the Republican nominee holds much merit. It does away with many of the largest objections to the present league of nations which is certain to be an association dominated by diplomats, in many cases wily in nature and influenced by considerations of expediency at the particular moment when the decisions are to be made and in whose determination national selfishness is bound to enter.

Without doubt there will be any amount of argument over the matter. The Democrats have taken the position where they would entangle the United States in the internal affairs of Europe through the league of nations in which our voice would be comparatively small while the Republicans, through their nominee, Senator Harding, have announced their position of keeping this country free to decide their own foreign policy. The Republicans are taking the stand that this country should be free to decide what part it shall take in foreign affairs and shall not be obligated by the decision of a league in which it is in the minority, to send its sons across the seas to take part in some of the numerous wars similar to those now going on within Europe. At another point in his speech of last Saturday, the Republican nominee shows his fitness for the presidency. And that point is when he says that he will form this association, if elected, with the advice and counsel of the leaders of both parties. What a relief such an announcement is after eight years of one man government, when not even the leaders of his own party have been consulted. The election of Senator Harding will mean that the executive branch of this government will once again occupy its rightful position and will not attempt to usurp the prerogatives of the legislative branch. Senator Harding, as president, will prove an executive, who, while capable of acting for himself, will at the same time take counsel and advice from the leaders of the nation, so that the best interests of all the people may be served.

LUCK IS WITH US FOR ONCE.

It is stated that there are 6000 American soldiers now guarding "the German Rhine" who were sent there under orders to proceed to Silesia. That was at the time when President Wilson still supposed that he was running this country, that he could pull us into the league of nations, that he could appoint on its council whom he pleased without asking the aid or consent of any other branch of the Government and that under the orders of that council could send American soldiers to fight any nation's battles.

There is lively fighting in Silesia and likely to be more of it. The French are there. The Poles are there.

And the only reason why American soldiers are not there is that by its refusal to advise and consent to our entering a pretended league of peace the Senate kept us out of war.

It is not to be forgotten that every strong nation but our own is a predatory nation. France wants Syria and more of Northern Africa which do not belong to her. Italy wants Asia Minor and also more of Africa. Japan wants all of China which she can get hold of. Great Britain wants the earth and did get by the treaty of Versailles areas nearly two-thirds the size of continental United States in addition to what she had before.

Alone of the great powers the United States wanted nothing and grabbed nothing. Alone of the great powers the United States will be found favoring an international society of equal nations which shall remain equal.

The other great powers, being exhausted and impotent, are crazy to get this country into the league and subject to its order that we, at the expense of our own lives and treasure, may assure possession of the predatory to all that they have grabbed.

And from that the United States Senate saved us. It would not advise or consent to any such wickedness. — Chronicle.

Governor Cox formally and tightly commits himself to the Wilsonian program of subjecting America to foreign domination. There's no doubt of it. He proclaimed it himself. He lays his claim to American votes upon that purpose. If elected, he would undertake to make good his promise. Do you want a fulfillment of it?

POSTMASTER ROW FINALLY SETTLED

Modesto, California, is Scene of Six Months' Dispute Over Appointment

MODESTO, Sept. 1.—The row in Modesto of more than six months' standing over the appointment of a postmaster seems about to be settled, according to word received here from Washington, although the place has been returned to politics and the postal civil service has been discredited.

Ever since former Postmaster Wade Howell, active Democratic party worker, was forced to resign after postal inspectors investigated complaints of Modesto business men, there has been a scramble for the job. Two men thought they were safely and permanently appointed, only to find they were not after protests had been made to Washington that both men were Republicans.

After the two Republican appointees had been disqualified, two postal service examiners appeared in Modesto. They announced an examination would be held and that regardless of politics the man with the highest rating would get the appointment. Major D. W. Morris and Arthur B. Rinehart, an ex-service man, took the examination, and Morris won out. When the result of the examination was given out, Representative Barbour announced that Major Morris was Modesto's postmaster, according to civil service rules. Morris is a Republican, too.

A few more telegrams were sent to Washington with the result that M. B. Kittrell, administration chief in the district, announced that the postoffice department wanted the names of three former service men, one of whom would be named Modesto's postmaster. Three names were selected—all Democrats—and Washington sources now say final action is to be taken within a few days.

Modesto business men have been forced to admit that their postoffice is still in politics.

SPUDS A LUXURY IN PHILIPPINES

By Associated Press.
MANILA, July 29.—Potatoes have become a luxury in Manila. For a month past the supply has been dwindling until a week ago when it was virtually exhausted. Prices have gone to 10 cents a pound for the few remaining in the city. Guests at hotels and boarding houses have been served rice as a substitute. A shipload of potatoes is due and it is expected that the shortage will soon be relieved and the price drop back to about 5 cents a pound.

BRITISH MAKE OFFER FOR OIL

Argentina Refuses to Accept a Huge Sum for Control of Petroleum Resources

(Correspondence of Associated Press)
BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 2.—Argentina has refused a British offer of 10,000,000 pounds for the control of the government's petroleum producing properties, maintaining its traditional attitude of guarding these deposits for the benefit of the nation. The offer was made by Frederick White, representing the Cowdray interests.

While the government's petroleum fields at Comodoro Rivadavia are producing approximately 200,000 tons of petroleum annually, the fuel shortage in the nation has given rise to agitation for more extensive development. A dispatch from London quotes Mr. White as explaining that President Irigoyen expressed himself as anxious for increased production but that he was unwilling to see the exploitation taken out of the hands of the Argentine people.
